Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Tuesday 27 Jul 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Showers with some clear spells overnight. Further showers on Wednesday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Showers easing for a time this evening, leaving clearer spells. Further isolated overnight showers may become heavy at times as they spread from the west. Fresher than some recent nights. Minimum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Wednesday:
Sunny intervals with some heavy showers which could become thundery. Increasingly breezy throughout the day, particularly in exposed costal areas. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Unsettled weather continues with showers developing on Thursday, and some persistent rain overnight. Breezy on Friday with further showers possible. Saturday may be clearer but still the chance of showers.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.